Topic: Don't Let Me Down:Democracy & Representation

Want to better understand how your voice represented in our political system? Does your vote count the same as everybody else's vote? These questions, among others, will be explored in this Learning Community dedicated to better understanding the issues surrounding the representativeness of the U.S. political system. Other topics explored include gerrymandering & apportionment, racial & gender under-representation, the Electoral College, alternative voting systems, and primaries & caucuses.

Topic: Making Sense of Society

This learning community focuses on the systematic study of social behavior and human groups as well as the processes of social change through quantitative data and measurements. Without the mathematical basis provided by statistics, data and measurements in the field of sociology would be rendered meaningless or, even worse, capable of distorted and misleading interpretation. Students will explore the foundations or sociology as a social science while concurrently exploring the mathematical science of statistics in a more applied manner than the usual theory focused course.

This course is not permitted for BA MATH majors.

=Topic: Culture and Crisis

This learning community explores the relationship between society, theater and film. "Culture and Crisis" will look at some of the fundamental categories that structure ancient and modern society (i.e. purity, honor, gender, morality). It will look at the way these values are reflected in sections of the Bible as well as select novels and films. "Theatre, Madness and Power" explores the ways in which such categories determine who we are and provide us with boundaries we overstep at our peril. The course explores, in particular, the ways in which theatre and film have played alternately sacred, populist, controversial, and conservative roles in examining, challenging or determining our ideas of sanity, purity, sexuality and morality. The course will complement "Culture and Crisis" by exploring plays, films, and readings that reflect recurring crises in ancient and modern society.

Topic: Earth Mothers: Women on the Global Stage

This LC explores women's experiences in a wide variety of cultural contexts by focusing on themes and issues shaping women's lives across the world. WST/IND216 (Women's Worlds--Global Issues in Women's Studies) examines the impact of global and transnational issues in shaping women's lives, historically and currently. WST/IND217 (Regarding Women" Women and Girls in Literature and Film) focuses on issues presented in fiction, drama, and short and full length film. The topics examined in this learning community include women's traditional roles in families and communities, capitalist economic development and poverty, the world of work, women's place in the environment, political participation, transnational movements of people and ideas, feminism, and human rights policies related to women.

Topic: Government Policy and Medicine

This learning community looks at how government and medicine impact each other. Understanding how state officials write policy directly informs how providers interact with patients in the clinic as well as how governments create incentives for some treatments or behaviors, but not others. In addition, understanding how governments are set up at the state and national level prepares students to evaluate when marginalized communities are excluded from policy or legal consideration.

Topic: Masks: Performance and Ritual

This Learning Community will focus on the use of masks within performative and ceremonial contexts. THA 108 will explore the fundamentals of acting and characterization through the lens of the mask and the specific problems it creates for the actor. IND 334 will look at masks and masquerades from different cultures in Africa and how they express shared beliefs about death, ancestors, initiation and fertility.

Topic: The Entrepreneurial Mindset

ENTR 201 identifies and analyzes the values, abilities, and personal attributes of successful entrepreneurs. Students will be introduced to the basic concepts of creativity and innovation, problem solving and brainstorming, opportunity recognition, effective written, verbal and non-verbal communication, new idea development and entrepreneurship as it relates to artistic industries, for-profit, not-for-profit, and social ventures. Through the development of an original entrepreneurship concept and case study analysis, students will explore and develop the entrepreneurial mindset. This course also examines entrepreneurship through the lens of creativity and the arts. The entrepreneurial mindset is a particular way of viewing the world and this course will draw upon concrete examples for how artistic inquiry has impacted entrepreneurship.
