Compostable Plastic wrap Made from Shellfish and Plants

Researchers have developed a completely compostable, flexible film that could be used to wrap our produce, meat and other goods. The scientists extracted tiny fibers of cellulose from plants and chitin from shellfish and suspended them in water. The two fiber types have opposite electrical charges so they adhere to each other. Even layers of the solution can be sprayed on a surface to create the film upon drying. This experimental version reduced oxygen permeability by up to 73% compared to existing plastic film, which could help keep produce fresher for longer. Let's hope that it can be mass-produced for commercial use. For more details, visit <https://pubs.acs.org/doi/10.1021/acssuschemeng.8b01536> or watch a short video.

Report Your Native Pollinator Sightings this Summer Through Early Fall

Volunteer citizen scientists are invited to contribute to the Empire State Native Pollinator Survey and learn more about NY's native pollinators. Native pollinators play an important role in the pollination of flowering plants, including native plants, wildflowers, garden plants, and cultivated crops. The goal of the study is to discover which native species are of conservation concern or declining and which species are common. We will focus on finding locations for important at-risk pollinator species that are native to the northeastern United States. We will target native bees, flies, beetles, and moth species. Participants will include Natural Heritage and DEC staff, partners, and citizen scientists. We will complete survey work from 2018-2020. Our Participant Handbook \(PDF, 2.5 MB\) provides guidance for our citizen scientist volunteers. The handbook includes descriptions of the different ways to participate in the project and how to submit data from observations and surveys. Training workshops have finished up for this summer, but more will be available in the next two summers. Contact the New York Natural Heritage Program for more information.

Want to increase your sustainability practices at Work?

We've all heard it before – "buy green products" – but what does that mean and how do I know if I am really purchasing an environmentally preferable product for my home or business? New York State agencies have taken a close look at what it means to buy truly green products and where to find them. They have developed criteria to purchase items that reduce harmful health and environmental impacts, minimize toxicity in packaging, and maximize recycled and renewable content. Check out the deep dive on everything from carpeting to lighting and from electric vehicles to office furniture at the "Green NY" website.

One Positive Solution to Marine Pollution: Biodegradable

Plastic debris is known for its harm to marine life, tangling birds' wings, choking marine mammals and distorting the shells of growing sea turtles. The rings, made of wheat and barley, are becoming available in south Florida. Learn more at <https://www.e6pr.com/>.

Enzyme May Allow New Uses for Plant Waste

Research by Professor John McGeehan from the University of Portsmouth has uncovered an enzyme that can break down lignin, a compound that provides support and woodiness to plants. Currently only limited fungi and bacteria can break down lignin. If an affordable method is developed, this would allow more plant waste to be recycled into materials such as nylon, chemicals, plastics and fuels. Read More

Rechargeable Batteries: What do I do with them when they no longer charge?

Different battery sizes and materials make recycling and/or recharging problematic. For batteries that are marked as rechargeable, they can be recycled at most retail locations that sell them, and retailers are required to provide signage and collection containers in easily accessible locations. Consumers are encouraged to utilize these take-back programs. Types of rechargeable batteries covered by the NYS Rechargeable Battery Law include Ni-Cd, sealed lead, Li-ion, Ni-MH, any other such dry cell battery capable of being recharged and battery packs containing any of the previously mentioned batteries. You can also check with your municipality or local recycling coordinator to see if any special programs are being offered in your area. Organizations and businesses can purchase a box to collect used batteries and then the box can be mailed back to the company for recycling. For non-rechargeable batteries, there is not currently a mandated take-back recycling program. Consumers can inquire with their local municipality or local recycling coordinator to see if any special programs are being offered in their area. Otherwise, non-rechargeable, single-use batteries may be put in your regular household trash and should not be taken to drop-off events.

DEC Adopts First Major Update to State's Environmental Quality Review Regulations in 20 Years

The DEC has adopted a rulemaking package as the first major update to State Environmental Quality Review (SEQR) regulations in more than two decades, preserving the integrity of the regulations and streamlining the environmental review process. The updates to SEQR will take effect on January 1, 2019, and will expand the number of actions not subject to further review, known as Type II actions, modify thresholds for actions deemed more likely to require the preparation of an environmental impact statement (EIS), and require scoping of an EIS. Additional highlights regarding content of a draft EIS, are the consideration of measures to avoid or reduce an action's impacts on climate change-induced conditions such as sea level rise and flooding, as well as enhancements to make acceptance procedures for EIS more consistent. Examples of Type II actions to be added include: green infrastructure upgrades or retrofits; installation of solar arrays on closed landfills, cleaned-up brownfield sites, wastewater treatment facilities, sites zoned for industrial use, or solar canopies on residential and commercial parking facilities; installation of solar arrays on an existing structure not listed on the National or State Register of Historic Places; reuse of a residential or commercial structure, or structure containing mixed residential and commercial uses; acquisition and dedication of parkland; land transfers in connection with one, two or three family housing; and construction and operation of certain anaerobic digesters at operating publicly owned landfills. Details can be viewed at <https://www.dec.ny.gov/permits/83389.html>

A New Invasive Pest: The Spotted Lanternfly

The spotted lanternfly, an insect native to Asia, has been found in New York State and is a potential major threat to many trees and crops. The colorful planthopper can affect grapes, hops, almonds, apples, cherries and several varieties of trees, including oak, pine, poplar, and sycamore. One of its major host trees is the tree of heaven which was introduced to the US. The spotted lanternflies, which have two sets of multicolor wings devour sap, often creating weeping wounds in their host plants. The insects lay eggs on many surfaces from firewood and lawnmowers to yard waste and vehicles from late September to October. If you believe you've found spotted lanternfly in New York State, take the following steps: take pictures of the insect, egg masses and/or infestation signs as described above (include something for scale such as a coin or ruler) and email to spottedlanternfly@dec.ny.gov; note the location (address, intersecting roads, landmarks or GPS coordinates); and report the infestation to iMapInvasives. For more information on this invasive insect, please visit the website of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Asian Longhorned Beetle Watch for Swimming Pools

The Department of Environmental Conservation is encouraging New York pool owners to participate in DEC's annual Asian Longhorned Beetle Swimming Pool Survey. This is the time of year when Asian longhorned beetles (ALB) emerge as adults and are most active outside of their host tree. The goal of the survey is to look for and find these exotic, invasive beetles before these pests cause serious damage to our forests and street trees. DEC is requesting that people with swimming pools periodically check their pool filters for any insects that resemble ALB and either e-mail photos to foresthealth@dec.ny.gov or mail insects for identification to DEC's Forest Health Diagnostics Lab, Attn: Jessica Cancelliere, 108 Game Farm Road, Delmar, NY 12054.

Pfeiffer Nature Center is honored to have local wildlife artist Jennifer Miller, 2015/2016 Federal Duck Stamp Artist and Pfeiffer Nature Center volunteer with us to explore all three at once with nature drawing/journaling! Nature drawing is the act of going outdoors and recording one's personal observations about nature (anything from a sweeping landscape to a tiny mushroom) though the use of drawings and notes. The end result is personal enjoyment, learning, and growth as an observer of the natural world. The goal is not making "perfect art"! Because of this, anyone can do and enjoy nature journaling, regardless of artistic skill. It has been proven that drawing observed objects (regardless of skill) generates greater memory responses in the brain. Jennifer will speak about the ideas behind nature journaling, demonstrate how to observe natural objects, and encourage the group to do some nature journaling on the spot! If you wish to participate, please bring a sketchbook, journal, or even a lined or unlined notepad, along with your favorite drawing tool (pencil, pen, etc). If you have it, a travel paint kit (such as watercolors) is welcome but not required. Supplies will not be provided; please bring your own. No special supplies are needed beyond paper and pencil; after all, the end result is not "fine art"! This is an outdoor event, so please dress appropriately. ## Tips for the Environment:

- 1. Recycle your hanging basket containers and pots- Several local businesses will recycle or reuse your plant pots: Mischler's Florist and Nursery, Lavocats Nursery, Lockwood's Nursery. Put any soil around your plants or compost, not the landfill. Charities can also use empty baskets for future planting and sales.

- 2. Consider “refurbished” electronics- Buying used or refurbished goods benefits the environment by keeping materials out of the landfill and saving energy on production. You can also save $$$. According to Sunnking Electronics Recycling, a common misconception is that buying a used item is the same as buying refurbished. Refurbished products are different than used products because used products have wear from previous owners while refurbished devices are returned to the manufacturer or seller for some other reason. For example, the item was damaged in shipping, it was an unwanted gift, the product packaging was altered (but the product wasn't used), the product has a defective part, etc. Although used and refurbished items can no longer be considered new, they are cleaned up, tested, and repaired by the team. For tips on what to look for read more here.
- 3. Vote in the primary and/or register for the general election- Sept. 13 is the primary and Oct. 12 is the deadline to register for the State general elections. Registration info at <https://www.dmv.org/ny-new-york/voter-registration.php>

Remember the 4 R's: Reduce, Reuse, Recycle, Repair

By Lesley Haynes

September is here and this month's theme is waste less. As the school year starts there are so many things you can do to become an even better world citizen.

BACK TO SCHOOL SUGGESTIONS:

- Before starting a new school year, sort through your school supplies. Many can be reused or recycled. Recycle unwanted papers and reuse your old notebooks, folders and binders. Share your used books with friends, relatives, or younger schoolchildren. Next, use these items to their maximum efficiency by printing on both sides of the paper, using paper already printed on one side for drafts and filling notebooks from cover to cover before purchasing a new one.
- If you buy new items look for the wide assortment of things made from recycled products, binders made from old shipping boxes; and many types of recycled paper products. Choose school supplies with as little packaging as possible. (30% of the waste in our landfills comes from product packaging)
- Do you really need a new ruler or a package of 20 pens? Make a list of what you absolutely need and what you want. Use nontoxic products, inks and art supplies, such as batteries with less mercury, vegetable-based inks, and water-based paints. Read the labels.
- Research the most eco-friendly computers. Laptops use up to 50% less energy than traditional desktop computers.
- Start shopping for used textbooks. They are cheaper than brand new volumes. Secondhand books help reduce the 20 million trees which are cut down every year to manufacture books sold in the United States. This single act can help the reduction in greenhouse gases used to manufacture and transport those new books.
- The Center for Health, Environment & Justice states that many children's school supplies (such as lunchboxes, backpacks and binders) are often made out of polyvinyl chloride (PVC or vinyl)—a toxic plastic that is dangerous to our health from production, during use, and at time of disposal. Be vigilant when buying these items – read the labels. Crayons are often made of paraffin wax, a product made from nonrenewable petroleum sources. Some of these crayons might contain asbestos, a health and environmental hazard that helps strengthen the paraffin and bond the coloring agents. Instead, choose crayons made from soybean oil. Soy is a renewable resource that is completely biodegradable and nontoxic.
- Look for PVC-free materials in raincoats, rain boots, prints on clothing, and accessories such as handbags, jewelry and belts.

- If you bring your lunch to school, package it in reusable containers instead of disposable ones, and carry them in a reusable cloth bag, or a metal lunch box. Many plastic lunch boxes are made of or lined with PVC. Bring drinks in a thermos instead of disposable bottles or cartons.

- If you buy lunch from the cafeteria, take and use only what you need: One napkin, one ketchup packet, one salt or pepper packet, one set of flatware. Also, remember to recycle your cans and bottles.

- If you drive to school, try carpooling or take public transportation. Get your parents' permission to try walking, biking, or skating. You can prevent wasted fuel, reduce air pollution, and decrease traffic in your community.

- Pass it on. Share the message with your friends and schoolmates. Waste less by reducing, reusing, and recycling. Don't be bashful about letting people know that you are trying to make some small changes to improve our environment. Volunteer for, or start, an environmental club or recycling project in your community, church or school.

“Together we can make a difference”
